

Colleagues,

Please take note of the Strike policy (Non-Academic staff)

“If a member of staff believes as a matter of conscience that he/she cannot cross a picket line, this act of conscience will be respected and no penalty will be imposed other than non-payment for the period during which services were not rendered. Staff who take that position will be expected to so advise their supervisor, head, or chair, as the case may be, and arrangements will be made to deduct the appropriate amounts from their salaries.”

Further information will be forthcoming concerning the tasks that management and professional staff can legally perform during a period of industrial action.

Ron Critchley
President, MUNASA